Johnathan:

I was just looking at your WRJ map on the web and noted that there are several errors in the railroad lines in the vicinity of the WRJ railroad station:

- The northeasterly leg of the “wye track” is part of the WACR/CRL, not the NECR;
- The southeasterly leg of the “wye track” also is part of the WACR/CRL, not the NECR;
- The east-west line that used to cross the WACR/CRL north-south main just north of the station has been gone for decades; and
- The WACR/CRL has its own line, running easterly of and parallel to the NECR main line, which extends southerly down to the “Bank Switch,” which is located in the vicinity of the I-89 overpass.
