

A photograph showing the underside of a bridge structure. A concrete wall runs horizontally across the middle of the frame. Above the wall, several large, dark, angled structural beams are visible. The ground in the foreground is covered with a layer of grey gravel and some small green weeds. On the right side of the concrete wall, there is a small, rectangular, light-colored label with a dark border. The label contains handwritten text in three lines. The scene is lit by natural light, with a bright area on the right side of the wall.

Derek
Wheeler
Summer
03