

A photograph of a concrete wall, possibly a retaining wall or foundation. The left side of the wall is heavily covered in green moss and algae. The rest of the wall is made of large, light-colored concrete panels separated by vertical and horizontal expansion joints. There are some small, dark spots and stains on the concrete surface. At the bottom of the wall, there is a dark, possibly asphalt or gravel surface. A date stamp '09/03/2020' is visible in the bottom right corner of the image.
